IN HYTHE LAST WEEK

The government seed grain officer, Mr. E. C. Gray, has been visiting us this last week, looking up data that will be suitable for seed.

He took a quick look at last year's oats in the elevators; a number of samples have been sent away for tests and examination qualities. We will know in a short time if the grain is good for the farmers in this district for this spring's seeding.

The farmers seem to be very pleased with the policy of handling these seed oats. The elevators have sent out bushels of oats for one bushel of seed, so there will be no cash money involved.

AFTER CALIFORNIA'S DISASTROUS RAINSTORM

These pictures attest to the severity of the rainstorm that deluged southern California, taking a terrific toll in lives and property. Top, a street scene in Los Angeles, where houses turned out to be the most suitable means of transportation. Left is a section of highway demolished by the downpour, and, right, an automobile which was one of the many washed away and almost completely buried, being dug out.

ANOTHER PICTURE OF WORST RAILROAD SMASH IN FRENCH HISTORY

The above picture graphically illustrates the terrific force of the collision between the two holiday trains at Ligny, France, where 200 passengers, homeward bound for Christmas, lost their lives and hundreds were injured. The locomotive of one train is shown here it plowed deeply into the coaches of the other.

CARNARVON AT ENTRANCE OF TUTANKHAMEN'S TOMB

SAVANNAH'S DEATH RECALLS KING TUT'S CURSE

The mysterious death of Dr. Arthur E. P. B. Weigall, noted author and Egyptologist in London, recalls the series of misfortunes that overtook many who connected with the expedition which opened the tomb of King Tutankhamen, at Luxor, Egypt, more than a decade ago. Superstitious Egyptians say the savanna's death is proof that the curse, placed by the ancient Pharaoh on defilers of his tomb, is still working. While excavation work on the tomb was still in progress, Lord Carnarvon, financial backer of the expedition, died mysteriously. Soon after Howard Carter, leader of the expedition, was stricken. The Hon. Reginald Wende, Carnarvon's brother-in-law, died at the age of 29, and Lady Carnarvon was afflicted with a mysterious malady but recovered. Colonel Audrey Herbert, Carnarvon's half-brother, died, and many others whose connection with the noblemen was remote, also suffered through the strange spell.

SITUATION DESPERATE

New York Mayor Favors Municipal Dictatorship

NEW YORK.—The establishment of a municipal dictatorship, unique in the operation of American cities, was the answer proposed by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia for solving the financial crisis facing the city of New York.

Confronted with a staggering operating budget of more than $200,000,000 and a minimum deficit of $25,000,000, the new mayor seeks a two-year period in which to operate with a free hand.

Under terms of his unparalleled proposal he would delegate to himself sweeping powers in the determination of economies.

But then if the farmer killed his machinery and sheltered it during the winter, what would our manufacturers do for a living?

THREAT OF WAR

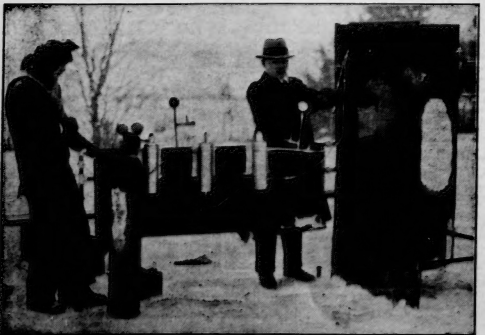

Speaker in Winnipeg Sees Many Signs

WINNIPEG.—Proposed amalgamation of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways is evidence Canada is preparing for war, declared Peter Hunter, Hamilton, Ont., in an address here.

Mr. Hunter, Canada's sole representative at the world's youth antiwar congress in Paris, last September, spoke to the Winnipeg Youth Antiwar congress. He said amalgamation of the two railways would permit quicker mobilization of troops.

Among other evidence war was near, said Mr. Hunter, was the heavy manufacture of equipment needed for troops and the existence in Montreal of "60,000 Fascist Green Shirts."

Then there was the girl who was so dumb that she thought tanks were little donkeys.

PREPARING A ROCKET FOR STRATOSPHERE FLIGHT

What is said to be the first successful test of a stratosphere rocket motor is shown in progress at Kirtland, Ohio, where Ernst Loebell, German scientist, is building a rocket that he hopes will travel 15 miles into the stratosphere carrying as passengers but scientific instruments that will make records automatically. Loebell is at the right above, while his assistant, Robert Hayer, is at the left.

HELPING TO MAKE THE BRITISH AIR FORCE MORE EFFICIENT

Lawrence of Arabia, now known as Aircraftman Shaw of the Royal Air Force, is up to his tricks again. He is playing with fire—and getting away with it. A story recently leaked out that Shaw was chasing around the North Sea in an armored speed boat and that squadrons of the British Air Force were using him as a target for live bombs. Everybody laughed at the story and labelled it "ridiculous," till the found it was a true story. Here we see one of the armored high speed boats designed by Scott, Paine, at the request of Shaw, who volunteered for the dangerous service. Each boat is equipped with three engines of 160 h.p., which send the boat roaring over the sea at 30 miles an hour. The boats are divided into small compartments, each of which is filled with a rubber substance known as monote, ten times lighter than cork, and which makes the boats unsinkable. The boats are equipped with wireless in order to send orders and receive them from officers of the bombing squadron. The lower picture shows one of the boats averting away from a bombing attack from a height of 200 feet.

"LAWRENCE OF ARABIA" PROVIDES PRACTICE FOR BRITISH FLEET BOMBERS

Bombing planes roaring over the cold waters of the North Sea, raining missiles at a swift but flimsy speedboat, hold no more terrors for the mysterious "Lawrence of Arabia" than did the fierce tribesmen of the burning sands during his thrilling exploits in the Great War.

With Hubert Scott-Paine, famous speedboat designer and driver, Lawrence has been revealed as originator of a stunt which has been providing the big bombers attached to the British Fleet with practice that has developed an astounding efficiency in the pursuit and bombing of fast craft. Scott-Paine designed a new type of armored and unsinkable speedboat of revolutionary design, while Lawrence, in order to get his revolutionary idea accepted, served as the original target, piloting the boat with small protection from the dummy but nevertheless heavy and dangerous bombs from overhead.

For some years the only naval target allowed was the old and slow warship "Centurion." From his work with the speedboats, Lawrence conceived the idea of building fast 40-foot speed boats, unsinkable, with a "crash" shelter for its small crew, as special targets for bombing practice. The design of the new boats is being kept as close a secret as has been the bombing operations in the North Sea. As many as 12 "planes" chase the boats on occasions.

The craft are manned by three men each; the boats themselves are packed with rubber and have steel plates for protecting the engine and crew. Tests have been conducted in all kinds of weather during the training season, two boats operating nearly every day. Every kind of bomb has been tried, including the spectacular diving of bombing planes which attain speeds of 500 miles an hour.

Each boat takes three two-hour turns in the bombing area, speeding up and down in a straight or zig-zag course according to wireless instructions, while planes rain bombs at them.

BOOK TALK

By J. C. B.

Original Design. By Eardley Bewick. This is a strong and vital novel dealing with the human ego-wheels of a big business.

Perman's Works, which for years has been a tower of strength and security to its hundreds of employees, is faced with the depression and its inevitable economic results.

With a keen insight and understanding the author makes the readers feel the actual despair of those who are thrown out of work, and the gnawing fear of those who know that it is only a matter of time before they too join the ranks of the workless. From the machine sheds to the directors' office there hangs over all the brooding cloud of despair. There is only one ray of hope, one person who can prevent, or at least arrest, the downward fall of the firm, the young designer who has it in his power to pull things together by a masterpiece of invention.

Although Perman's does not exist under that name it stands as an example, to show the position in which almost all the big concerns are situated today. Clearly the author has studied his subject.

The Fault of Angels. By Paul Horan. The Harper Prize Novel of 1933-34. A witty, satirical comedy, set in the American city of Dorchester.

Written round the artistic and musical centres, and chiefly the opera houses, there are numerous character studies, each one very finely etched. Above all there is Henry Gannon, immensely rich, the promoter of the musical centre, who like a god looks on at the excited whirl of his satellites. He is a man of vision, and he is the artist, sophisticated and gloriously temperamental. Artfully the author goes modern. Mrs. Kane, attended always by her people with the ruler, carrying into the scene the beautiful and devastating Nym, with the naivety of a child, who is the "red" because in America there have no soul.

Delicately painted throughout, the book has charm and originality.

It is interest in life that keeps a wife free from wrinkles and ill-effects to one might mean something deadly dull to another.

The man who would keep his girl a girl till the silver, or even golden wedding day, let her know and feel that he trusts her judgment, respects her opinion, admires her traits, values her as a person, and not as a mere commodity, and she will yield to his intuitions—no often right—and even shares some of her perplexities.

ESKIMO GOES MODERN. Have Had First Labor Strike and Won "Hands Down."

The Eskimo goes modern. They have had the first labor strike in their history. And they won it.

A NEW DRESS MATERIAL. Artificial Silk Combined With Wool Gives Different Effect.

Many women are already wearing the very newest dress material, a woolen cloth identically covered with white hairs.

At first glance one is reminded of the appearance of an archer after being equipped by a "moultin" terrier.

These hairs are usually made from waste product of artificial silk. Just now, it is used successfully, but the same effect is also produced by the use of spun glass.

Wool from Angora rabbits also serves a purpose in the manufacture of an attractive, lustrous fabric, the down from goose feathers plays a useful and decorative part in yet another dress cloth.

We already have artificial silk from trees, perhaps even leaves and rubber in new guise, may one day again find modern women—London Daily Mirror.

Reports of butter were slightly greater last year than during 1932. The production in the production of cheese is reflected in reduced volume of exports, but in this connection it should be noted that stocks of cheese in Canada as at December 31 were 2,360,130 pounds greater than at December 1, 1932.

Prize are highly favored for resort fashions. There are lovely evening gowns of either printed crepe or printed chiffon.

Respectfully practical and up-to-date the minute the evening gown is taken off. It may be worn for travelling or it will make a smart morning costume at the resort. It consists of a coat and suit of the same cloth and on similar lines.

The coat shows wide reverse, sleeves full at the shoulders, a double-breasted effect, jacket pockets and long silhouettes. The two-piece suit beneath is made in the same style.

The skirt shows the same double-breasted effect, the same revers, the same pockets. There is just difference in the puffs on the sleeve shoulders of the jacket.

That they slip under the coat sleeves easily and do not make for a bulky appearance. The skirt worn with the suit jacket is straight and slim, similar to the skirt of the long coat.

The chosen fabric is a soft checked wool in navy and beige. Navy buttons are used and the costume is completed with gaudy gloves of

KEEPS OLD MAIL BAG

HE DELIVERED FOR YEARS

Charles Hendler, rural mail carrier of Proulx, Ont., loves the mail bag he has "kited for 30 years" and because he does Postmaster-General A. Farley permitted him to keep it when he retired in December. In request for 12 or 14-inch size glass. But kept it in repair at his own expense since entering the service.
